1. An examination of pertinent records reveals that (a) the survey was initiated by the Management Staff on 24 August 1954 and (b) the basic report was completed on schedule.
2. Numerous difficulties were experienced in obtaining five concurrences. These were not only the occasion of a series of long delays but actually confused the issues and complicated the possibility of obtaining final approval.
3. Under these circumstances, the study has remained in suspense pending the completion of more important assignments. In view of the prior difficulties, the establishment of a suspense date would be impracticable.
